Research shows that enterprises fail at execution because they go straight to structural reorganization and neglect the most powerful drivers of effectiveness—decision rights and ... They are the hardest numbers to move: persistent racial and socio-economic gaps in student opportunity and achievement. While Massachusetts can boast of more adults with college degrees than any other state, it also has substantial rates of income inequality and some of the fastest-growing college costs in the U.S., according to a recent report the New England Board of Higher Education. A new perspective. In Teal organizations decision-making is highly distributed. Front-line individuals or teams have the opportunity to make decisions that affect their work. While these decisions may not need to be validated by a hierarchy or consensus, it is expected that experts, and those affected, should be involved. - Art Of Decision Making : Issues And Cases In Higher Education
